Hi, my name is Carlee Liesch. I am in my last semester of college at the University of Nebraska at Kearney. I am studying Industrial Distribution with minors in Spanish and Psychology. I will be starting my career in January with a distributor, although I have not chosen a specific company yet.

I hope to start in the warehouse for a short period of time and then move to counter sales. In counter sales, my goals are to absorb as much knowledge about the products I will be selling as possible and to build strong relationships with all the customers I work with. Within a year to a year and a half, I would like to have moved into inside sales, where I can apply the product knowledge, I learned working at the counter toward performing computer operations, creating job quotes, and much more. Within this time, I want to have all computer processes down to a science and be able to perform them with ease. Following my time in the warehouse, in counter sales, and inside sales, I would like to earn the opportunity to step up to outside sales within the first two years of working at my company of choice. This time will be a substantial time for growth in my career.

As far as my goals for the company I choose to work for, I want to make a difference on the team. I hope to become an unknown missing puzzle piece to a company's culture and push other employees to work harder. Within five years, I would like to have learned so much about the products and myself to be in a position where I can own my own successful company if that is something I still want.
